Speech Department Head Charles Dickson and Wartburg Players are making history on the boards of the Little Theater during the run there of Samuel Beckett's controversial tragicomedy "Waiting for Godot."

The two-act play opened here Thursday evening and will close tonight. Last performance will begin at 8:15.

Thursday night's performance, witnessed by a small but completely captivated audience, was the Midwest premier of Beckett's English version of his French drama.

Think! To say whether the play or the production is good or bad or somewhere in between is almost impossible. One thing, however, can be said without reservation—for an hour and forty minutes director-producer Dickson made every member of the audience think — and think hard.

From here, that makes the venture a complete success.

"The play is for the adult mind," Dickson says in his program notes. "It will take concentration and thought plus a broad background of experience, for even a glimmer of understanding to leak through."

Concentration for the audience was difficult during the opening minutes of the play, but once Bob Loslo and Don Oberdorfer, taking the difficult roles of Vladimir and Estragon, the two tramps "waiting for Godot," stopped tripping over their too-rapidly-delivered speeches, they captured the audience completely.

Diskson

Loslo

Bravo! What is more, they turned in what may well have been the best jobs of acting done from the Wartburg stage in many years. Through their stylized burlesque and warmly human characterization, they forced the members of the audience to take an honest look at themselves, see the shortcomings of society and become—not disgusted—but resolute.

Junior John Werner turned in the finest performance of his Wartburg career as the blind dictator Pozzo. Although a little too convincingly in love with his own voice at times, Werner's portrayal effectively represented the dictators of the world that seem to enslave those around them but are really enslaved by the common man whose service gives the dictator power.

Freshman Phil Lack handled the small but difficult part of the enslaved Lucky with the competence of a veteran. Gary Hertel, son of Dr. and Mrs. Elmer Hertel, played the part of a boy.

Good Technical. Lighting by senior Jim Roever, costumes by freshman Melba Neumann and settings by senior George Herbener all contributed to an excellent technical production remarkably well suited to the play.

And Godot? He never appears. He is never defined. The playgoer can make whomever or whatever of him he desires. One's first impression of Beckett's script may be that it was a monstrous hoax being played on the theatrical world. The Little Theater production disproves this.

Oberdorfer

Mr. Beckett does have something to say. The difference is that he makes us say it.

Profs Test Tests; Six to Mt. Vernon

Conference on Testing and Evaluation, sponsored by the North Central Association Committee on Liberal Arts Education, will be held next Friday and Saturday at Cornell College, Mount Vernon. Six Wartburg representatives will attend.

Representing Wartburg will be Dean of the Faculty John Chellevold; Dr. Elmer Hertel, Biology Department; Raymond Norheim, History Department; W. G. Fruehling, Psychology Department; and Dr. Edwin Sandberg and Miss Erna Moehl, both of the English Department.

Senate Gives MENC $75 For Operetta

Live opera theater will be presented on the Wartburg campus when the comedy opera "The Telephone" is staged by the local chapter of the Music Educators National Conference next Wednesday and Thursday.

The show will be backed by Senate Swing Show funds.

"The Telephone," written by the contemporary Italian composer Menotti, has run on Broadway and has been shown on television.

The story revolves around the eternal triangle plot with a telephone as the third party. Sharon Folkerts, junior, will portray Lucy, and Keith Lunde, sophomore, will play Ben.

Action by the Student Senate allotted $75 to the opera from the Swing Show fund. This amount will be repaid out of the opera's proceeds.

To be given two evenings at 8 in the Little Theater, the admission will be fifty cents per person.

Olinda Deines, junior, is directing the opera. "I feel 'The Telephone' affords the Wartburg student an opportunity to see live opera on our own campus," she stated. "This should provide an enjoyable evening of entertainment for all."

Students from Iowa State Teachers College, neighboring elementary and high school students, and all Waverly school pupils have been invited to attend the opera.

ACS To Hold Banquet Friday

Annual banquet of the Wartburg College student affiliate chapter of the American Chemical Society will be held Friday at 7 p.m. at Carver's Restaurant.

Dr. Earl W. Phelan, liaison assistant with Argonne National Laboratories at Lemont, Ill., will be the featured speaker. His topic will be "Peacetime Atom."

Dr. Phelan received his Ph.D. from the University of Wisconsin and has served as professor and head of the Chemistry Department at Georgia State Women's College. He has been an instructor at Oregon State College, Cornell College and Western Reserve University. He has also done research in national defense.

Two Questions Face Meeting On Thurs.

Two major questions are up for discussion at Thursday's Student Body meeting. Items to be discussed include the popular concert for this year and what to do with the $662 left over from last year's Student Body Project.

At Monday's Student Senate meeting, everything from Senate money to the exchange program with Luther College was discussed. Student Body President Don Altmann also reported that a new vote will be taken on the question of having a campus chest this year.

FRAUD IN BALLOT. Reasons given by Altmann for throwing out the ballot were discrepancies in voting, failure of everyone to get a ballot, no one to collect ballots after the vote and only 150 ballots returned.

Money-wise, senators gave the Music Educators National Conference $75 from the Swing Show fund to sponsor the operetta "The Telephone" March 14 and 15. If a profit is made from the show, the money will be returned to the fund.

TWO MORE WEEKS. Two weeks were also approved as the Senate named April 1-7 as Academic Freedom Week and April 8-13 as Courtesy Week. The first will be in charge of the student academic life committee while the other will be under student activities.

Senior Jim Roever was placed in charge of a planned exchange program with Luther College. At the meeting it was reported that the bus to the Luther game lost $18.

Senators also will continue to study the question of the college Specialty Series. Dress-up night was also discussed, but no action taken .

ABOUT TIME. Altmann also reported that in 1950 a collection was taken in convocation for the Heart Fund with $24.71 being collected. However, the money had never been turned in.

Senators approved deducting $4 for expenses for the Heart Fund Drive Feb. 28 and voted to send the remainder to the State Heart Fund.

TRUMPET, Glamour Look For Best Dressed

Who is the best dressed girl on campus?

That is the question the TRUMPET in cooperation with Glamour Magazine and Conde Nast Publications is trying to answer this week.

Some weeks ago Nast Publications asked TRUMPET editor Cy Wainscott to head a local committee to choose the best dressed coed on the Wartburg campus. That coed will be entered in competition with women from other colleges throughout the nation.

Winners of the national contest will be awarded all-expense-paid trips to New York City and featured in the summer college edition of Glamour.

Wartburg committee, composed of Wainscott, Don Altmann and Janice Rapp, selected freshman Evie Goldenmann; sophomores Avona Ahrends and Karla Edgar and seniors Helen Schwerin and Irma Niederwimmer as finalists.

Elsewhere in this paper is a ballot which may be used by each student to select one from these.

Committee Looks At Library

Preliminary plans for the proposed library will be the subject of discussion Monday afternoon when Dr. William Young, executive secretary of the Board of Higher Education of the American Lutheran Church, meets on campus with the library and building committee.

Major hurdle facing the group is how to make $250,000 build an adequate library. The American Lutheran Church allocated this amount only for the building.

The committee will meet with Dr. Young to obtain his ideas and plans for the proposed building. Both Dr. Young and the library committee have been doing extensive research into planning.

Engelbrecht

Wing and Prayer. Preliminary plans call for the first wing of a planned two-wing building to be constructed at this time. It is hoped that construction can get under way within a year.

The second wing of the library would be added about four years from now under the tentative plans which have been set up.

Considerable discussion has arisen concerning the building of this library. Major contention has been that the college should wait until it can build an adequate library, rather than erect a building knowing that it will be inadequate.

'Must Be Three.' ALC has allocated money for three buildings — a new men's dorm, the library and a chapel-auditorium in the center of Luther Hall. However, it turned down a request that the funds be used for only two buildings — the dorm and the library.

It is hoped that after the meeting, campus architects, Woodburn and O'Neil, may be instructed to draw up plans and specifications for the library.

Becker Attends Foundation Meet

President C. H. Becker attended a meeting of the Iowa College Foundation in the Hotel Des Moines, Des Moines, Thursday.

Purpose of this meeting was for college representatives to discuss the spring drive with representatives of business and industry from all parts of the state. Thus far $125,000 has been received this year. It is hoped that an additional $50,000 will be raised this spring.

The annual meeting of the organization will be held at Decorah April 30.

Proud Hails, Loud Howls

Wartburg went to Denver for the NCAA competition.

A very past tense statement, that. It's history now. It may be relived many times in many minds, but that particular time in Wartburg history will never come again.

But the repercussions are still coming — and will continue to come.

Denver newsmen, men whose business it is to watch and report on hundreds of groups coming into their city each year, told us that the Wartburg group was "a fine one . . . one of which (we) can be proud."

Certainly we can be proud of Ax Bundgaard and his squad. The game they played Tuesday night in the Denver Auditorium was as fine a sporting exhibition as Wartburg has ever seen. It was a "team" game, and no man on that team need feel ashamed that it was Wartburg and not Regis that came out six points short of victory.

We can be proud too of the between seventy and one hundred students who followed the team to Denver. Their conduct reflected for the most part all that would be expected of men and women of — and we are not just pulling this phrase from a stack of old clinches — a Christian liberal arts institution.

We can be proud of those students in Waverly who were on hand to cheer the team as the boys left for Denver from the Waterloo Airport and greet them when they returned.

We can be proud of a Student Body that displays the teamwork and spirit necessary to raise the more than fifty dollars needed to bring them and the rest of Northeast Iowa the radio account of the game.

We can be proud to live in a town where the citizens raised $500 in less than three hours as their part in supporting the team through the radio broadcast.

This year was the first for NCAA small college tournaments, and Wartburg has been a part of that history-making first. The entire college was put in the limelight . . . and showed up favorably.

Another repercussion, almost too petty to mention, was the howl of indignant rage that went up from some faculty circles when they learned that students would be excused from classes to attend the game.

Exactly why they howled so and are still howling is not clear. The Administrative Council didn't ask the faculty before it acted. Even if it had wanted to, there would not have been time, and the faculty representatives on that council were present. And since when has the faculty been dictating policy to the Administrative Council?

It was an inconvenience to the faculty members, but no more than to the students involved. It was a non-academic activity in one sense but certainly as justifiable as the calling off of classes for the Fine Arts Center dedication.

If Wartburg College is going to support a sports program, it should support it well. Some of the howlers favor our sports program; some do not. Nevertheless, we have it. We believe it is a healthy one, free from over-emphasis.

We challenge anyone to show how the dismissal this week was out of line with the college ideals, regulations or moral principles.

KNIGHT BEAT

by Bob Loslo

Last Thursday's production of "Waiting for Godot" marked the first time in Little Theater history that a curtain closed without any applause. We aren't sure whether it was awe or puzzlement or displeasure that prompted the first act silence, but it should convince you that "Waiting for Godot" is something to see, if only to satisfy your own curiosity.

Thirteen days until Spring Vacation and still no sign of Spring. Unless, of course, you want to consider the fact that the Christmas tree in the Cedar River sank a little farther. Not the one from Vollmer House, we decided to keep it until next Christmas.

Notice to everyone who went to Denver: It's only your imagination that the assignments were tripled in every class while you were away. Or mayba that's why so many professors were seen Monday walking around with a sinister look on their faces.

Boy journalist, Harold Kurtz came back from Colorado impressed with the efficiency of the police in that state. That is until he got stuck in a ditch and needed some help. That's all right, Harold, maybe you can go in the plane next time. He loves me. You can tell by the bloodthirsty look in his eye as he proof reads this copy.

It's a tragedy that one play presented in the Little Theater will never be seen by the Student Body. Oberdorfer directed "Heavenly Discourse" for Dr. Sandberg's Modern Drama class with this all-star cast: Bill Melvin as St. Peter, Dick Broderson as St. Michael, Oberdorfer as Jesus and Martin Luther and John Werner as God. Thera were others, but this is the most reoresentative example of miscasting.

As an audience draw, one student who read "Waiting for Godot" suggested that we include the lines that were cut from the Thursday and Friday night performances.

Sad news for TRUMPET alumni and staffers. After this year the Pub House will no longer be the home for any of the three publications. Matter-of-fact it will either be torn down or moved from its present site.

Ghana — A New Birth Of Freedom

By Don Oberdorfer

To be able to witness such a grand thing as the birth of a new country during such seemingly perilous times as those in which we are dwelling, seems to be indeed a rare thing.

Oberdorfer

The incident which brought a tiny ray of hope and peace into the minds and hearts of world citizens was the formation of the old Gold Coast area in Africa into the newest country in the world— Ghana.

Last week, March 6 to be exact, the British-dominated area was turned over to Prime Minister Kwame Nkrumah and his cabinet of Negro ministers. Historically speaking, it has been only a few decades since the British first began to take over the reins of the small but rich colony.

At that stage of the game, being primarily savage and uncultured, the people thought little of Britain's advances. Actually, there was nothing to be lost and everything to be gained. From a useless tract of wasteland, Ghana was transformed into an agricultural area which now produces rich minerals and vital lumber reserves to other nations around the world.

Britain, able to a certain extent to see that the future for its "colonial" empire is doomed, is cooperating fully with the Ghanese government. Ghana, in turn, wants to become the first all-black democracy to be admitted into the sheltering wing of Britain as a dominion.

This dimpled-darling of the dark continent shows signs of being a stout defender of freedom against all forms of aggression which have been in the past and will undoubtedly exist in the future. Nkrumah, a peasant boy educated in mission schools and the universities of this country, has dabbled in almost all types of government and has chosen the only true representative type of government—democracy.

This is, to some exent, the cry of the black man which will be heard the world over. In this age of the Atom, we must, and should, expect that all men will live as brothers on a level which echoes fraternity and equality for all men—whether they be white or black.

For this reason, I feel sure that all freedom-loving peoples in the world will do their utmost to help and support the advances which mankind is making the world over.

Regis Downs Wartburg In First Game

By Ouene Schroeder

It's been a great season.

Wartburg College, second-place finisher in the Iowa Conference, was bumped out of the NCAA tournament by Regis College, Denver, Colo., 88-82 in the first round of competition at the Denver Auditorium last Tuesday.

Trailing since midway through the first half, Wartburg made several desperate rallies during the final period. With a minute and 14 seconds left, Dennis Boone, Regis guard, entered the ball game without reporting to the scorer, and a technical foul was called on the Rangers.

Art Margheim, who had just been fouled, put in three free throws to close the gap to 84-60. Wartburg took the ball out of bounds, but two missed shots broke the Knights' back.

BEST EVER. Dennis Boone, called by many sports writers in the Denver area as the greatest natural athlete to come out of that region, scored 11 buckets and 2 free throws to lead the game scorers. Boone, who because of a sprained knee had missed a previous game with the Air Force Academy, which Regis won 61-45, showed no signs of infirmity against Wartburg.

Extremely fast and possessing a deadly jump shot from anywhere on the court, Boone led several last breaks for Regis during the first period, which kept the Rangers ahead of the Knights.

Rebounding power and torrid shooting plus a free-throwing lapse by the Knights won the ball game for Regis. The Knights were out-scrambled on the boards 63 to 41 for the game and were outshot 44 per cent to 39 per cent. Sixteen missed charity tosses by the Axmen proved to be the difference and then some.

ART SPARKS. Coming out of the locker room at halftime trailing 41-33, the Knights, sparked by Margheim, who scored 22 markers, closed the gap until John Tuecke, 6'6" freshman center, tied the ball game up 51-51 midway through the second half with a free throw.

However, Johnny Gatens, guard, scored 12 of his 14-point total in the last few minutes of the half, to sew it up for the Rangers.

Each member of the squad, plus the two coaches, received medals for having participated in the tourney.

Name Margheim All-Conference For Third Time

Art Margheim was named to the All-conference first team by the Iowa Conference coaches late this week for the third straight year.

The 5'10" Windsor, Colo., guard scored 228 points for an average of 14.3 per conference game. Margheim, a senior, closed out his college basketball career last Tuesday night by scoring 22 points against Regis College, Denver, Colo., in the first round of the NCAA tournament in the Denver Auditorium.

John Adix, 6'2" guard, was selected All-conference honorable mention. The Denver, Colo., junior swished the nets for an even 200 conference points, averaging 12.5 markers per game.

Helping Margheim bring the ball down the court at the other guard slot would be Stu Steiner, Parsons, who dumped in 287 points for an average of 15.3 per conference game. Wayne Sawyer, the only unanimous selection, who dumped in 277 points for an average of 17.3 for Upper Iowa during league play, and Bill Reid, Dubuque, who scored 267 counters for an average of 16.7, were named at the forward slots.

Iowa Conference's leading scorer, Don Gibbs, Iowa Wesleyan, was picked by the coaches to start at center. Gibbs averaged 28.2 points per contest with a total of 451 conference points.

Upper Iowa Sweeps Loop

Upper Iowa emerged the victor over Wartburg, 76-65 in the final Iowa Conference title contest this season. The win climaxed a drive which saw the Peacocks victorious in 15 of their final 16 starts.

An undisputed title was gained by Upper Iowa when Dubuque crushed Parsons 97-75 the same night. Parsons was beaten 69-69 the previous night by Upper Iowa.

Statistics-wise, Upper Iowa's first-place Peacocks also won a title by compiling 80.8 points per game against league foes. Wartburg, tied for second with Parsons, won the defensive crown by holding its opponents to a scant 67.2 points per game.

Following are Iowa Conference final standings:

"How much life insurance should I have?"

• That's a question many intelligent students are asking their LUTHERAN BROTHERHOOD agent. Of course each student must help to answer it himself . . . so we thought we'd pass along a few "answers" which pop up time after time.

Many thoughtful students say, "I want enough insurance to relieve my family of financial hardship in case something happens to me." Others say, "I can't afford much now, but I want enough insurance on which to build a program of financial security in the future."

Some say they want enough to be protected should they become uninsurable in the future. One said, "I want enough to make me save as much as I know I should."

Whatever your "answer", remember your Lutheran Brotherhood agent — a fellow Lutheran — will be glad to help you by adding his experience and counsel . . . Write . . .

Students Explore Denver

HAIL, HAIL The gang's all here sing students as they serenade departing Knight cagers. Here Wartburg fans gather at the Waterloo Airport.

* * * * * * * * *

By Harold Kurtz
Managing Editor

"What'd ya do? Have a mass migration from Iowa?" The person asking the questions was a student at Regis College in Denver. And the answer?

"Well, just about."

It wasn't just the students that went to Denver that had all the fun though. To the students keeping the college running, tournament fever ran just as high.

Monday morning over one hundred students were at the Waterloo airport to see the team depart, while Wednesday evening twice that number were on hand to greet the returnees. Student Body President Don Altmann reports that while at the airport Wednesday, he was accosted by a stranger, and the ensuing conversation went something like this:

"What's all the kids doing here?"

"We're here to greet the team who were out to Denver to play in the NCAA tournament."

"Oh, you won, eh?"

"Nope, we lost."

"Yup."

The stranger walked away, shaking his head.

Out in Denver, the Colorado capital swarmed with Wartburg fans. The Hotel Auditorium was filled with fans and players. This is what the hotel clerk said when a registering party asked to be placed in the same part of the hotel with the rest of the Wartburg group:

"That's OK — they're all over."

It wasn't all basketball though, as students did everything from mountain climbing to mint visiting. One exploratory expedition (which fortunately never got under way) found four Wartburg coeds all set to visit Boulder Dam—at Boulder, Colo.

Another mountain expedition didn't turn out too well for the car driver. Duane Toomsen, senior, found out that when the sign says "Watch for falling rocks," it means it.

Although shirt-sleeve sunshine greeted advance man Norm Fintel on his arrival, snow and cold were the fare for many on both the trip out and the return.

One car spent considerable time in a Highway 34 snowbank waiting for a wrecker — but the wrecker never came. Another took a roll in the white stuff, and it took two Wartburg cars to right it.

And, as the cars swung onto Bremer Avenue Wednesday, the thought running through many students' minds was: "Well, it would have been nice if we could have won, but—it was a good trip anyway."

Singers Set Tour Dates

"Gentlemen, be-eee seated!" These words will be carried into seven communities in three states beginning March 22 when Castle Singers, campus vocal music group directed by Dr. E. A. Hovdesven, leave for their 1,500-mile annual spring tour.

Two chartered buses will carry the group, make-up, lighting equipment and costumes on the tour. Following is the itinerary released this week:

March 22—Arlington
23—Earlville, Ill.
24—Rantoul, Ill.
25—Holland, Ind.
26—Metropolis, Ill.
27—Altamont, Ill.
28—Hartsburg, Ill.

Times of concerts as well as arrival and departure schedules will be announced at a later date.

Foreign Affair Saturday To Aid Student Project

An "International Holiday," a big playland featuring the countries of the world, will be the theme of the Student Body Propect carnival, next Saturday, March 16, at 7:30 p.m. in Knights Gymnasium.

Fun will be the main object of this "world-wide" carnival, and the proceeds from it will be added to the student body project fund.

Names of king and queen candidates from the different housing units have been released by Gene Van Driel, carnival chairman. Grossman Hall will support the following queen candidates: Marjorie Clark, sophomore, first floor; Helen Mueller, sophomore, second; and Darlene Arns, freshman, third. Sophomore Elaine Ranscheu is North Hall's candidate for queen.

WH PICKS 3. Supported by Wartburg Hall are the following king candidates: Charles Maehs, junior, first and third Bill Bomhoff, senior, second; and Harold Hinrichs, senior, fourth. King candidates from Centennial Hall include: Norm Litzner, freshman, basement; Al Bahlmann, senior, first; John Adix, junior, second; and Phil Moeller, junior, third. It is possible that some other housing units may decide to sponsor candidates.

Each penny contributed will count as one vote for the candidate, and the king and queen will be chosen on the amount of money paid for each.

A midway of concessions will feature approximately twenty booths, ranging from a lower Siberian pie throwing contest to a steeple chase. Prizes of $5, $3, and $2 will be awarded to the three booths taking in the largest amount of tickets.

GYM OPEN. The gym will open Saturday so the booths can be built. It has been suggested that people in the booths dress in the costumes of the country the booth represents.

The evening will be climaxed by the crowning of the king and the queen at 10:30.

The other day our vice president in charge of good news announced that someone, somewhere, enjoys Coke 58 million times a day. You can look at this 2 ways:
Either we've got an incredibly thirsty individual on our hands. Or Coca-Cola is the best-loved sparkling drink in the world.
We lean to the latter interpretation.
